

English Composition program outcomes

Committee members: Margot Haynes, Dana Denney, Kathy King, Joan Ramm (chair)

Upon successful completion of the mainstream composition classes, students are able to:

- Organize writing to develop a central theme or argument, moving from general to specific evidence in a logical way.
- Access, evaluate and use information to support ideas in a text, accurately documenting sources.
- Employ writing conventions that are appropriate to academic/professional contexts.
- Demonstrate a problem-solving approach to the writing process both individually and in peer review.
